This presentation includes figures relating to EBITDA. EBITDA is not a standard measure under Ind AS, but is a widely used financial indicator of a company’s ability to service and incur debt. EBITDA should not be considered in isolation or construed as an alternative to cash flows, net income or any other measure of performance or as an indicator of the Group's operating performance, liquidity, profitability or cash flows generated by operating, investing or financing activities. In evaluating EBITDA, investors should consider, among other things, the components of EBITDA such as total revenue and operating cost and the amount by which EBITDA exceeds capital expenditures and other charges. EBITDA has been included because it is believed that it is a useful supplement to cash flow data as a measure of the Group's performance and its ability to generate cash flow from operations to cover debt service and taxes. EBITDA presented herein may not be comparable to similarly titled measures presented by other companies. Investors should not compare the Group's EBITDA to EBITDA presented by other companies because not all companies use the same definition.

Advantages of Vertical Integration Manufacturing Capabilities

- Lower switching costs among suppliers
- Lower lead time
- Reduces reliance on third parties
- Higher flexibility and speed to market
- Enhances the knowledge pool and R&D capabilities
- Ability to position better with customers
- Cost advantages across different businesses
- UFlex offers superior technology – an inline shouldering process with optimized shoulder weight and supply chain flexibilities for various diameters, thread profile and orifices as against traditional pre molded shoulder welding
UFlex Localized Supply-Chain results in Cost-Efficient Operations

Localized Procurement in Major Production Facilities

FY21 Purchases

- Local/adj. 28%
- Rest of the world 72%

UFlex has a history of dealings with marquee suppliers globally. However, as an industry practice, we do not enter into long term fixed price contracts. The absence of long term contracts provides UFLEX a hedge against input cost fluctuations and flexibility to react quickly to pricing changes. UFLEX is able to pass-through any increase/decrease in raw material costs to its customers, thereby keeping inventory costs in check as well as passing lower costs to customers, as and when such situations arise.

- The inventory holding period is optimal (~90 days in FY21)
- The Global presence of UFLEX enables it to source raw materials locally wherever it is cheaper, resulting in cost efficient operations and making it immune from geo-political disruptions.
